IBL Welcomes Mississauga Twins

The Intercounty Baseball League's Major Council has approved the sale of the Stratford Nationals to Elliott Kerr, president of the Landmark Sports Group, and the transfer of the franchise to the City of Mississauga.

The new franchise will be known as the Mississauga Twins and it will commence play in the 2009 season. The Twins will play their home games at the Meadowvale Baseball Complex in Mississauga.

'We extend a warm welcome to Mississauga as the footprint of our league continues to grow,' IBL Commissioner Jim Rooney said. 'Having one of the largest cities in Canada joining the oldest amateur baseball league in the Country, established in 1919, will only add to the excellence of amateur baseball that our fans have come to enjoy.'

'We certainly extend our appreciation to John Gillespie, the former owner of the Nationals, who has operated the club for the past several seasons. We acknowledge the long and great history of the Stratford franchise in our league and hope to one day be able to return to that city. 'At this particular time however this sale to an outstanding individual as Mr. Kerr along with the opportunity to have a team in Mississauga is in the best interests of the former owners and the IBL as we continue to move forward as a league.'
